They should not be able to. Insider trading is too rampant.

Kelly Loeffler, Dianne Feinstien, and Jim Inhofe were caught red fucking handed, selling shares before the market cratered pre pandemic yet their case was dismissed.

The most attractive men are usually the most sleaziest and have zero standards

In the past, all my really good looking friends, who were the biggest womanizers, were also the sleaziest guys you could imagine. Why you say? Because they would do anything to get attention from a woman and always made it a priority to try and sleep with them. They would literally sleep with any woman. No matter the attraction level. They'd see prostitues and knew how to make their online profiles immaculate, . They were extremely clean cut, funny and very charasmatic. They knew exactly what to say and when, but they had no standards at all. All of these women seemed honored to be with these men and they were just master manipulators. For these guys, it wasn't about intimacy or longing. It was just about power and wanting to domimate another human being. It's sad to say these men are the ones that do the best in the dating world and the very fact that a person would be so grateful that a 10 was sleeping with them, is sad. However, they had no idea that the guy has an STD or was banging a prostitute the night before. Also, all these guys would steal your girl in a heartbeat and would try and embarass the guy to try and make himself look better. They all did this. Every single one of them. I am not saying every very single attractive male is like this. This just has been my experince FWIW.

Millennials make up the largest portion of the workforce but control only 4.6% of U.S. wealth. Boomers control over 53% of the country's wealth. When Boomers were the same age as millennials are today, they controlled 21% of the wealth. Millennials have far less wealth than boomers at the same age.
