 The Social Media Purge of Conservatives is a Giant Election Meddling Scheme

longer be denied that there is a coordinated, sustained effort to censor and silence conservatives by social media Silicon Valley giants as part of a giant election meddling scheme.

ly acknowledged that Facebook and Google both backed both Obama and Hillary Clinton in the last two presidential elections.

former campaign director openly admitted Facebook was “on our side” during the 2012 campaign.

emails also reveal that Facebook COO Sheryl Sandberg wanted Obama to win “badly” and visited her multiple times.

emails also prove “a relationship with Schmidt dating back to at least 2008 and show that Google loaned its jet to members of Clinton’s staff on several occasions.”

documented that there are at least 45 Facebook employees who, previously worked or volunteered with the Hillary campaigns, the Obama White House and are now employed by Facebook-owned companies, or the Chan-Zuckerberg Initiative.”

Political connections demolish the “it’s just a private company” claim and they also illustrate how the silencing of conservatives is a concerted effort to help the Democrats’ election prospects.

An internal Facebook message board post also revealed how conservatives within the company have become irate at its censorious “political monoculture that’s intolerant of different views,” said the post. “We claim to welcome all perspectives, but are quick to attack — often — anyone who presents a view that appears to be in opposition to our ideology.”

N claims that censorship of conservatives is a conspiracy theory. President Trump’s claim that Big Tech silencing independent voices is contradicted by the multitude of evidence suggests otherwise.

At the sheer number of right-leaning commentators, political figures and news outlets that have been hit with bans, suspensions or censorship.

Examples: Banned by Facebook, YouTube (Google), Apple, Spotify and other tech platforms all within one 48 period.

Professional candidate Elizabeth Heng: campaign ads banned by Facebook and Twitter.

Stonewall: Banned by Twitter.

McInnes & the Proud Boys: Banned by Twitter over spurious claims of “inciting violence” and being an “extremist group,” despite McInnes and Proud Boy group repeatedly disavowing violence.

University: Repeatedly censored by YouTube.

David and Silk: Repeatedly suspended by Facebook.

Spencer: Mastercard pressured Patreon to remove Spencer’s Patreon page on unsupported accusations of violence.

King: Facebook censored paid ads for a pro-life campaign.

h right-wing political parties: YouTube has repeatedly deleted g content on the eve of Sweden’s national election.

; by no means exhaustive. There are innumerable other examples.

recall James O’Keefe’s exposé which showed eight current and witter employees explaining steps the social media giant takes to olitical content they don’t like critical content they don't like.

ne anti-war and libertarian or left-leaning personalities and have been censored, the overwhelming majority of individuals and :ions affected have been conservatives.

Bokhari writes, "These individuals all had hundreds of thousands, as millions of followers on their social media accounts prior to rned. Their social media platforms served as organizing hubs for fundraisers, rallies, and other political activities of the grassroots e loss of their social media accounts will have a major impact on the conservatives and right-wingers to organize its online supporters S. midterm elections and beyond."

longer be denied that this represents a deliberate effort to m conservatives and purge them from what is now the de facto uare in order to help Democrats win the next two elections. This is neddling.

king place as a result of lobbying by mainstream media networks to shut down their competition, brigading by left-wing Soros front group Media Matters, and Democratic lawmakers.

month before Infowars was banned by Facebook and YouTube, Florida Republican Congressman Ted Deutch (D-FL) demanded that Facebook and YouTube ban Infowars.

It's not just private companies enforcing their terms of service, this is a coordinated conspiracy by Big Media, Big Tech and Democratic Party members to silence their political adversaries.

As I have shown that algorithmic changes alone, the very type that Trump complained about in his tweets this week, can shift millions of votes in elections.

Just be taken.

White House petition has been launched calling on Trump to pressure Congress to pass legislation that will protect free speech rights online.

Sign it right here. Once the petition passes 100,000 signatures, the President will be forced to respond.

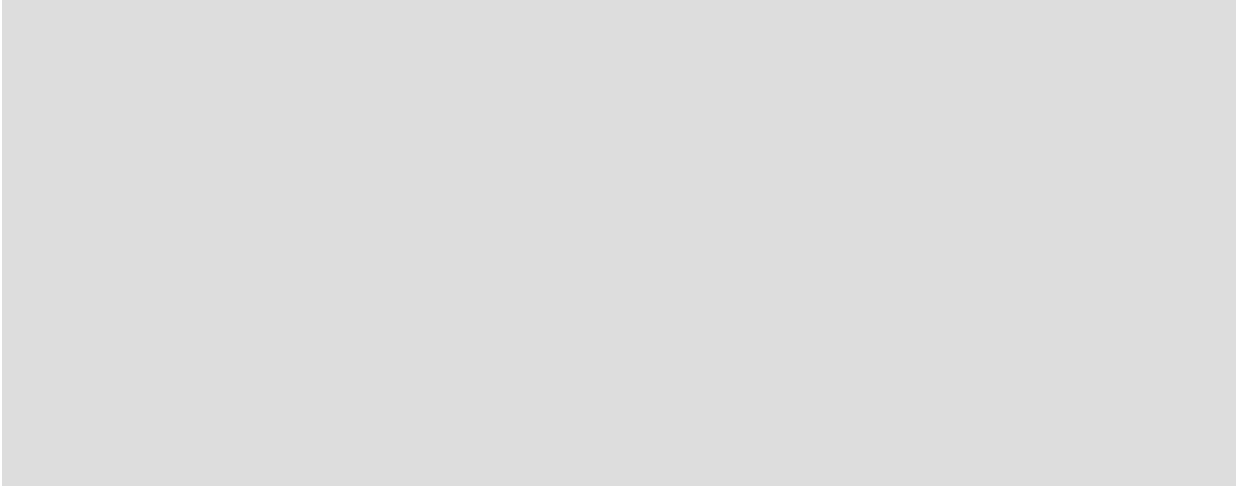

In addition to the petition, with the help of top media lawyers, Infowars has developed a series of recommendations to be sent to the Trump administration that will help protect free speech online.

Recommendations include directing the Justice Department to open investigations to determine whether there are First Amendment & anti-trust law violations by the major social media platforms. Trump could also set up a Presidential Commission made up of free speech experts to advise him on future action.
