'There were multiple steps that were slow-walked at the Department of Justice': IRS whistleblower breaks cover after claiming Hunter Biden was given preferential treatment during federal tax probe

Gary Shapley, a 14-year IRS agent, said he immediately saw deviations in Hunter's tax probe investigation when he was assigned the case in January 2020. 'When I saw the egregiousness of some of these things, it no longer became a choice for me. It's not something that I want to do,' he said. Shapley blew the whistle three years after the investigation has started, which is being lead by Trump-appointed US Attorney in Delaware, David Weiss. The investigation is looking into potential outstanding tax debt for Hunter's stint as a board member of Burisma, a Ukrainian energy company, while his father was VP, as well as, a possible false statement for a gun purchase. He also claimed to have faced retaliation from IRS leadership after speaking out and Hunter's team has accused him of breaking the law.

BLM heads for INSOLVENCY after plunging $8.5M into the red - after brother of founder Patrisse Cullors was paid $1.6M for 'security services' in 2022, and board member's sister took a $1.1M 'consulting' fee

Black Lives Matter's national organization is at risk of going bankrupt after its finances plunged $8.5 million into the red last year - while simultaneously handing multiple staff seven-figure salaries. Financial disclosures obtained by The Washington Free Beacon show the perilous state of BLM's Global Network Foundation, which officially emerged in November 2020, as a more formal way of structuring the civil rights movement. Yet despite the financial controversy and scrutiny, BLM GNF continued to hire relatives of the founder, Patrisse Cullors, and several board members. Cullors' brother, Paul Cullors, set up two companies which were paid $1.6 million providing 'professional security services' for Black Lives Matter in 2022. Obama told cops to "leave them alone".

Just 33% of the $90 MILLION that Black Lives Matter received in donations went towards helping charitable causes - as shock report also reveals co-founder's graffiti-artist brother was paid over $1.7M

Just 33 percent of Black Lives Matter's accumulated wealth of $90 million found its way to charitable causes, a shocking new report says. The group doled out around $30 million between 2020 and 2022, during which time it collected $90 million in donations as it promoted itself as the preeminent civil rights organization in the US. Among the benefactors of BLM's paltry donations were friends and family of co-founder Patrisse Cullors, in particular her graffiti artist brother, Paul, who received $1.7 million in salary and contracts during that time period.

Biden financier: Bill Gates is seen in public for the first time since it emerged pedophile Jeffrey Epstein 'tried to extort him over affair with Russian bridge player'

Bill Gates shrugged off revelations about a 2010 fling with a Russian bridge player - and attempts by Jeffrey Epstein to 'extort' him - as he jetted into LA for a meeting with an award-winning screenwriter. Gates, 67, was seen publicly for the first time since the affair emerged as he traveled by private jet to meet David Guggenheim. Dressed in a blue polo shirt and gray trousers, Gates clutched his cellphone as he was met by an aide who handed him a bottle of Diet Dr Pepper. The Microsoft billionaire's trip to LA comes days after details emerged of his fling Mila Antonova - nearly three decades his junior.
