

Graham: We Need a Special
Counsel to Investigate How the DOJ Used the Steele Dossier

by IAN HANCHETT | 29 Dec 2017 | 547

On Friday's broadcast of the Fox News Channel's "Tucker Carlson Tonight," Senator Lindsey Graham (R-SC) called for a special counsel to investigate how the Department of Justice used the Steele dossier.

Graham said [relevant remarks begin around 4:00] that he believes Special Counsel Robert Mueller is doing a fair investigation, but isn't looking at the Steele dossier because that isn't part of his purview.

He continued, "I've spent some time in the last couple of days, after a lot of fighting with the Department of Justice to get the background on the dossier, and here's what I can tell your viewers, I'm very disturbed about what the Department of Justice did with this dossier, and we need a special counsel to look into that."

